Fairview Enlarged.

On July 18, 1902, after another city election, the board of water commissioners rescinded their vote to establish a reservoir at Stony brook. The board then employed Chandler & Palmer to present plans and estimates for raising the dam at Fairview. This plan as developed was adopted Sept. 8 of the same year. Work was begun at once and the storage capacity of the reservoir was increased 100,000,060 gallons.

The results have given evidence the the almost unanimous reports of the engineers were correct regarding further expenditures at Fairview. With two succeeding dry years we are as short of water as ever. Within two years the Mendow brook dam has been rebuilt at a large expense. Everything has been done to prevent waste, but Engineer Atten's Report.

On Sept. 4, 1899, the board of water commissioners submitted to the court of common council a report made by Charles A. Allen of Worcester on the water situation in Norwich. Mr. Allen gave as his opinion that the expenses of adding storage capacity to the present reservoir would be far in excess of the advantage gained. He also it declared that laasmuch as all large consumers were metered the installation of meters for private consumers would result in a very slight saving and would cost at least $70,060. Mr Alfen concluded his report by agreeing with Messra. Chandier & Palmer of Norwich and Richards of New London that Stony brook was the most available site and it would be a mistake not to develop it at once.

On Oct. 2d following Alderman Sherman introduced a resolution in the court of common council authorizing Mayor F. L. Osgood to appoint three members to investigate the possible increase of the city's water supply by providing a requisite dam to retain the water from the so-called Meadow brook watershed. Aldermen Sherman and Stoddard and Counciman Glimour were appointed on this committee.
